++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain skirting the far south, else sunshine and showers Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showery rain is likely to move eastwards across far southern parts overnight, with the rain perhaps heavy at times later. Otherwise, evening showers and thunderstorms should fade, leaving most other areas dry with clear spells. Becoming breezier towards dawn. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Monday:
Breezy at first, with occasional rain in the far south progressively breaking up into showers, joining the rest of the region in sunny spells and eventual heavy, perhaps thundery showers. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Most likely becoming more settled, with a few further showers Tuesday giving way to a drier Wednesday, perhaps interrupted by a little rain for a time Thursday. Temperatures near normal.
